

Notes on Contributors

Giovanni Barbieri is Assistant Professor of Political Sociology in the Department of Institutions and Society at the University of Perugia. Recent publications include: L'uomo comunitario nella società globalizzata (Rubbettino, 2010); Mutamenti della politica nell'Italia contemporanea (editor, with Roberto Segatori, Rubbettino, 2007); Pareto e il fascismo (FrancoAngeli, 2003). His research interests lie in the areas of globalisation, ethno-regionalist parties, communitarianism.

Valeria Camia is a research assistant at the Institute of Political Science of the University of St. Gallen, with a scholarship funded by the Swiss National Research Foundation. Her research analyses how European cultural and economic integration challenges mainstream parties in EU member-states, including the most fundamental concepts and assumptions on which their ideologies rest.

Roberto Fornasier, PhD in Diplomatic History at the University of Padua (2007), is completing his second PhD in International History at the University of Nottingham (UK), with a research project on political-diplomatic relations between Italy and the United States in the 1970s. He is the author of five books: J. Maritain ambasciatore, Rome: Studium, 2010; M. Rumor e le ACLI vicentine, Milan: FrancoAngeli, 2011; Vittorino Veronese, Rome: Studium, 2011; Le ACLI di Treviso, Treviso: Piazza Ed., 2012; The Dove and the Eagle, Newcastle upon Tyne: Cambridge Scholars Publishing, 2012. He is currently working as a post-doctoral research fellow at the University of Padua, Italy, School of History, and writing a biography of Mariano Rumor (1915-1990).

Francesco Marangoni is a post-doctoral fellow in the faculty of Political Science of the University of Siena, where he collaborates with the observatory on institutional change, hosted by the Centre for the Study of Political Change (CIRCaP). His main research interests focus on political élites, legislative behaviour and coalition politics in parliamentary democracies.

Mario Quaranta is a Ph.D. candidate in Political Science at the Istituto Italiano di Scienze Umane in Florence, and a member of the International Center on Democracy and Democratization at LUISS, Rome. In 2011-2012 he was visiting fellow at the Center for the Study of Democracy at the University of California, Irvine. His main research interests are comparative political behaviour and methodology for social and political research. He has articles forthcoming in the European Political Science Review, Comparative Sociology and Quaderni di Sociologia.

Christian Ruggiero is a researcher and teaching fellow in the Sociology of Cultural and Communicative Processes in the Department of Communication and Social Research of the University of Rome, "La Sapienza". His teaching and research activities concern political communication and the sociology of journalism. Among his publications: Il declino della videocrazia. TV e politica nell'Italia del Medioevo (Naples: Scriptaweb, 2011); Le parole della politica. Protagonisti, linguaggi e narrazioni nell'Italia del 2008 (editor, with Michele Prospero, Naples: Scriptaweb, 2010).